

Matthew J. Bonachea

Associate

Matthew is a native Floridian who grew up in the Ft. Lauderdale area before relocating to Orlando to attend the University of Central Florida. At UCF, he earned a Bachelor of Science in Interdisciplinary Studies degree with concentrations in Health, Life, and Biomedical Sciences. Matt went on to earn his Master of Emergency and Crisis Management degree, which sparked his interest in law, leading him to Stetson University College of Law in Gulfport, Florida. Before joining Kirwin Norris, Matthew gained valuable experience as a law clerk for a regional insurance defense firm. During his time there, he worked on cases across various practice areas, including construction defect, construction premises liability, property insurance coverage, bodily injury liability, and auto glass litigation. Before law school, Matthew worked in emergency management for local government and was a student conduct administrator at UCF.

Outside of work, Matt enjoys spending time at Orlando's theme parks, trying local restaurants, and spending time with friends and family, including his partner and their Chiweenie, Goofy.
